

Nevada Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) Overview

William Gardner, Chief Administrative Officer, Nevada OSHA; is currently the Chief Administrative Officer for Nevada Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA). Prior to being appointed as Chief, he served the agency as a Compliance Officer and a Compliance Supervisor where he supported the Las Vegas district office by leading pandemic-related enforcement efforts. Before his time at Nevada OSHA, he served in various private-sector occupational safety roles with a predominant emphasis in the field of Process Safety Management. He has over 12 years of compliance-related experience in the field of occupational safety and believes that managing workplace compliance starts at managing workplace culture.