

Important Information Regarding Physical Examinations for Police Officers and Firefighters

Industrial insurance benefits are available to all qualified police officers and firefighters who acquire lung and heart diseases. To qualify, certain minimum employment requirements must be met and firefighters and police officers are required to submit to physical examinations.

The implementation of these benefits requires the involvement and cooperation of the employers, the police officers, firefighters and volunteer firefighters, the insurer, and the medical examiners.

Nevada Revised Statutes, NRS 617.455 and 617.457, provide that, under certain circumstances, all lung and heart diseases for police officers and firefighters, and lung diseases for volunteer firefighters, are conclusively presumed to have arisen out of and in the course of employment.

The Nevada Administrative Code (NAC), Chapter 617, provides the administrative requirements for all police officers and firefighters who are required to submit to physical examinations in order to receive industrial insurance benefits pursuant to NRS 617.455 and 617.457. These requirements detail the frequency of examinations, the minimum requirements of the exams, the duties of the employer, and the duties of the employee.
