To Whom It May Concern:

On April 30, 2020, Governor Sisolak laid out the State's Nevada United: Roadmap to Recovery plan, designed to build a path forward and safely restart Nevada's economy. Nevada has a proven record of resiliency. This plan takes a collaborative approach to unify efforts towards collective goals to rebuild our communities back stronger than they were before. Government entities, businesses and individuals all have a role to play to ensure a successful recovery, which will require common sense and personal responsibility.

Develop a Plan

Each business in our state needs to begin considering how it will reopen in a phased approach depending on the level of health risk to Nevadans. Consider the following as you develop your COVID-19 reopening action plan:

- Amend your Written Safety Program to address the potential hazards in each phase of reopening (required for businesses with more than 10 employees) (NAC 618.538).
- Per your Written Safety Program, evaluate new hazards as they are identified and re-evaluate known hazards to identify any additional mitigation measures needed (NAC 618.540(1)(b)). Businesses should consider engineering controls, administrative controls, safe work practices, and Personal Protective Equipment (PPE).
- Develop and implement training for employees for any equipment, engineering process, administrative control or PPE required by your plan (NAC 618.540(1)(c)).
- Establish methods for ensuring compliance with the amended safety rules and work practices (NAC 618.540(1)(e)).
- Establish policies and practices that ensure social distancing.
- Establish policies and practices to sanitize common surfaces and encourage hand washing.
- Conduct daily surveys of changes to staff/labor health conditions.
- Address how to serve customers who are sick or in vulnerable populations.
